Cartus was recognized by The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) with a Silver level award in the 2006 Race to Excellence

RISMEDIA, October 6, 2006—Cartus, a provider of global mobility management and workforce development solutions serving the corporate, government and affinity markets, announced that it was recognized by The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) with a Silver level award in the 2006 Race to Excellence.

The award highlights Cartus' work promoting green commuting choices, commuter benefits, and the Best Workplaces for Commuters designation in Danbury, Connecticut. Winners were recently recognized at the Association for Commuter Transportation International Conference in Boston, Massachusetts. Ira W. Leighton, deputy regional administrator, EPA-New England was on hand to present the award.

In total, 56 organizations earned an award—19 Gold, 19 Silver, and 18 Bronze Level winners.

"The winners of the 2006 Race to Excellence are at the top of their class," said Patrice Thornton, national manager of the BWC Network. "These individuals and organizations are increasing the value of commuter benefits and ensuring that Best Workplaces for Commuters continues to grow as an innovative solution to air pollution and traffic congestion across the country. It is truly amazing to see the level of enthusiasm and creativity on display among this year's winners."

"Cartus is proud to have achieved Silver level status in the Race to Excellence," said Kevin J. Kelleher, president and CEO of Cartus. "Our organization will continue to work with Best Workplaces for Commuters and strive to promote green commuting choices and employer-provided commuter benefits."

Other organizations that won silver level awards are Wyeth, Greater Boston BWC Partnership, and the University of Michigan, among others.
